Lab Work -02

Preparing a Repository

1. You will develop a page where people can store their text or image files.
2. You will ask the user to log in with their email and password if they want to access the feature
3. The user will enter the name and the file they want to store.
4. You can develop this project in any language. Save this project in a Git repository.